Our Mission

The Graystone Society is a not-for-profit educational institution focused on broadening an understanding of the iron and steel history of Coatesville, Chester County, Southeastern Pennsylvania, the region, and nation, to audiences of all ages and interests, by collecting, preserving, exhibiting, and interpreting iron and steel's history, as well as, contributing to its local economies in a meaningful way.

Our Vision

The National Iron and Steel Heritage Museum of the Graystone Society is a vibrant place where people encounter, explore and learn about the past. With diverse audiences and Chester County's unique heritage at its core, the Graystone Society is an educational leader in the history community of the Delaware Valley. In pursuit of this vision, the Graystone Society will:

- Identify, collect and exhibit significant historical materials related to the iron and steel history community of the Delaware Valley
- Provide leadership in the responsible preservation of and public access to these historical materials
- Encourage excellence in research, documentation and interpretation of historical materials
- Present exhibitions that use historical materials to enrich the public's understanding and appreciation for the iron and steel heritage of Coatesville, Chester County and Southeastern Pennsylvania region
- Foster an appreciation of the importance of historical materials to enrich public understanding of the past and the creation of an improved future
- Serve diverse audiences through a variety of learning formats
- Promote pride in both individual and community heritage
- Respond to the community's needs to explore and examine issues critical to its past and application to contemporary life
- Provide support to historic preservation initiatives in the Chester County region
- Maintain mutually beneficial relationships and alliances with educational institutions, the business community and civic organizations

Report from the President

Everything that the Graystone Society and the National Iron & Steel Heritage Museum can accomplish is because of our members, donors, visitors, and volunteers. It is the people like you who believe in what we do and help us financially who allow us to achieve our mission. In return, we aim to be held accountable for our actions and use of finances. This is the purpose of this Annual Report: to provide measures of finances, contributions from members and donors, and involvement of volunteers and visitors. This report will show you that EVERY BIT COUNTS... from a short visit to a large donation, and everything else in between.

*Scott G. Huston,
President*

We are located within a registered National Historic Landmark, known as the Lukens National Historic District. In the district we have six historic buildings, various species of century-old trees, and acres of grounds and open space to maintain. Our property management begins with curb appeal, maintaining the attractiveness of our buildings and grounds. If they look unkempt, this leads to a perception of neglect. Neglect can lead to an accumulation of minor maintenance matters (fixing leaks, repairing roofs, cutting dead limbs from trees, etc.). If we cannot keep up with minor maintenance, it can become deferred maintenance, or problems so large that we cannot afford to fix.

With your support the Graystone Society and the National Iron & Steel Heritage Museum can continue to keep up with maintenance, so that we do not face the problems of long-term decay, financial issues, and possible demolition of our historic assets. Once our physical place is secure, we can implement and continue to offer our exhibits, educational programs, and community events. We can provide a place to experience history and steelmaking, a place where people like you can learn about the importance of the American steel industry to our nation's past, present, and future.

Thank you for all you have done, continue to do, and will do for us... we could not do it without you!

Report from the Executive Director

The 2015 Graystone Society's National Iron & Steel Heritage Museum's Annual Report will provide a review of the museum activities to you, our stakeholders and community. The highlights include the 2015 Rebecca Lukens Award recipient, Mary Ann Rossi, in recognition of her distinguished career as an attorney and an active community leader.

The museum was the recipient of a major donation to its model train collection by Charles L. Huston III, "Skip", an avid collector of train models, and a serious and knowledgeable student of railroad history and technology. In Brandywine Mansion a discovery was made of a treasure trove of letters and items that are more than 180 years old, with some letters addressed to Rebecca Lukens.

*James D. Ziegler,
Executive Director*

In the following pages you will find reports about the iron and steel industry interpretation and the ways that our community participates with us to learn about the past, present and future of the people, process and products of Coatesville and beyond.

The National Iron & Steel Heritage Museum would not be able to provide any of its valuable programs and services without each and every generous supporter. Through this report, we would like to recognize the many supporters that have helped develop NISHM's interpretive history and science programs. We hope you enjoy reviewing last year's activities as much as we enjoyed hosting them!

The Lukens National Historic District

Our history is painted with many brushes — the evolution of steelmaking and products that kept pace with a growing nation; and the spirit of the men and women of steel marked in the homes, art and artifacts we hold in safekeeping.

1. Start your visit at the Lukens Executive Office (circa 1902-03) by taking an annual report worthy photo on the impressive staircase. Enjoy the steelmaking dioramas, Grutzka art collection and gift shop.
2. The Grutzka Collection may be the most comprehensive essay of America's great industrial age. Today, more than 90% of the structures he painted no longer exist.
3. A.F. Huston's Graystone Mansion (circa 1889) embodied the gravitas of a steelmaking dynasty. Available for special events.
4. The success of Rebecca Lukens' mill is evident in Terracina (circa 1849), the home of her daughter, Isabella. Open to the public as a furnished 1880 house museum.
5. Our current restoration project Brandywine Mansion (circa 1739) was home to America's first female industrialist, Rebecca Lukens.

6. The restored Tenant House (circa 1880) was typical of housing provided for workers of that era. Closed to the public.
7. After years of service at Lukens, our 1965 International Travelall Ambulance, 1947 Dodge Fire Engine and a 1965 GMC Fire Engine still look ready to roll!
8. The 120" Rolling Mill was an active Lukens production facility from 1942 to 1985. Closed to the public.
9. The Steelworkers' Memorial features a World Trade Center Tree made from Lukens' steel. This memorial commemorates steel workers and first responders who gave their lives in service.
10. Our Sonarsphere was manufactured in 1984 to hold 1,245 hydrophones on a nuclear submarine. It was the first Lukens Steel product to return home.
11. The 1911 Porter Steam Locomotive was the workhorse of a turn of the century steel mill.

Our History

The Graystone Museum Society of Coatesville was incorporated in 1984 and began planning a room in the then City Hall, Graystone Mansion, as a museum area. Shortly after its formation, the Society's attention was diverted to Terracina, its first real estate acquisition, the 1850 home of Dr. Charles and Isabella Huston — parents of A. F. Huston — and later the home of Stewart Huston. Working with the City, and with the Huston Estate, the Society agreed to fill the need for a non-profit group to take on the management and general restoration of Terracina in late 1985.

With financial support coming primarily from the Huston Foundation, the Society began the stewardship care and restoration of the house. With the establishment of The Stewart Huston Charitable Trust in 1990, the Society received major grants which allowed for many important restoration projects: roofing, heating, wiring, plumbing, air conditioning, etc., as well as restoration of the interiors to period appearances. The current plans for Terracina are to develop a house museum dedicated to the Huston family of Coatesville and their other related family branches.

The City decided to erect a new municipal office building and police station and moved out of Graystone mansion in 1992. Designed by noted Philadelphia architects Cope & Stewardson and recognized as the most architecturally significant house ever built in Coatesville, Graystone was much too important for the heritage of the city and region to risk its loss. With the support of the then management of Lukens Steel Company, the City agreed to transfer the property to the Graystone Society in 1995. With funds from the Lukens Foundation, the Society was able to do a major clean-up of the buildings and grounds, as well as initiate an architectural and engineering study of the buildings by Dagit-Saylor Architects from Philadelphia. The Society currently uses the mansion for social events, meetings, concerts, and of course, tours.

In 1988 the National Trust for Historic Preservation through their Comprehensive Historic Assistance Program for Historic House Museums compiled a report for Terracina. This report concluded that the Graystone Society needed to expand its mission beyond just preserving Terracina to reflect a broader purpose: the iron and steel industry and its role in the development of the community. After acquiring Graystone Mansion, the Graystone Society commissioned Dagit-Saylor to conduct a feasibility study for the restoration needs of the House.

In 1994, the National Park Service of the United States Department of the Interior bestowed its highest designation on the buildings of the Lukens Historic District — Brandywine Mansion, Terracina, Graystone, and the Lukens Executive Office Building — naming it a National Historic Landmark.

While the Lukens Foundation continued to grant the Graystone Society the funds needed to operate Graystone Mansion, they also began pursuing the concept of a broader vision in a steel museum. After touring other national industrial manufacturing sites with museum components, Lukens recommended Dagit-Saylor to conduct a feasibility study for a steel museum complex, which was completed in 1996. However, shortly after the completion of this study, Lukens, Inc. was sold to Bethlehem Steel Company in 1998. The third and most prominent building in the Historic District came under local control when The Stewart Huston Charitable Trust bought the Lukens Main Office in 2000 from Bethlehem, allowing the Graystone Society to conduct tours of this important structure. At this time, Gateway Park was developed, securing the Historic District's northern end. Finally, in 2006, the Stewart Huston Charitable Trust acquired Brandywine Mansion, the home of Rebecca Lukens and immediately transferred it to the Graystone Society securing ownership of all the structures in the Lukens National Historic District.

In 2001, the steel museum plan of 1996 was revisited and, after much discussion, led by nationally recognized museum planner Harold Skramstad, a more sustainable vision was created for the site in 2003/2004. Further, an interpretive plan was completed by McKelvey Museum Services, bringing an educational focus to the museum. Building upon these efforts, the Society is working with The Stewart Huston Charitable

Trust and the Huston Foundation, as well as the City, to create the National Iron and Steel Heritage Museum — a major endeavor which would utilize former mill buildings and a circa 1890's rolling mill adjacent to the house and office properties.

The Graystone Society has been adding depth to its programming for the last number of years including displays of Lukens' products and the equipment used to produce them. In 2002 and 2004 scientific test lab equipment from the G.O. Carlson Company was added to our collection. We began preserving the history of safety at the mill in 2002 by acquiring a 1965 International Travelall ambulance. In 2005 we located and acquired a 1947 Dodge fire truck followed by a 1965 GMC fire truck in 2008. Also in 2008 we built and dedicated a storage facility to house the safety equipment and the G.O. Carlson collection. In 2004 we located a narrow gauge railroad engine of the type previously used at Lukens and developed an outdoor display for it along with ingots and scrap pans indicative of its use in the plant. In 2007 we installed the informational signage for our exterior walking tour. Also in 2007 we acquired and returned to Coatesville a 1980's era Sonar Sphere, a 15' diameter 27 ton steel dome that was manufactured by Lukens Steel for the US Navy and used in the sonar listening systems of nuclear submarines.

In April of 2010 we successfully acquired and returned to Coatesville 500 tons of steel, including ten Tridents, or Trees, used in the bases of the World Trade Center Towers which were melted, rolled and flame cut here at Lukens. Planning is currently underway for the display of the steel as a central part of the National Iron and Steel Heritage Museum.

In 2010, the Graystone Society commemorated 200 years of the iron and steel industry in Coatesville. A highlight of the Society's June 26th event was the unveiling of a brass plaque mounted on a steel ingot donated by ArcelorMittal. The marker was placed near an historic section of the plant that included the original open hearth building where steel was first made at Lukens in 1892. A second event was held on July 2nd — the date of Isaac Pennock's purchase of the land from Moses Coates in 1810 — with a memorial rose-planting ceremony at Brandywine Mansion, the home of Rebecca Lukens and the starting point of the Lukens National Historic District.

Over forty years ago, The World Center Trees were made from Lukens' steel. Since their return home, they have been a moving reminder of 9/11.

Students learn about manufacturing steel by viewing scale models of rolling mills and spinning machines.

Progress in the areas of historical preservation, education and community are marked in 2012 when Harcum College began classes at Graystone, the Klaus Grutzka Industrial Art Collection was acquired and Phoenix Iron & Steel Co. blueprints were added to collections. The Brandywine Mansion Historic Structures Report was completed in 2013.

National Iron and Steel Heritage Museum has enormous potential to provide educational, tourism, and economic stimulation for the urban revitalization efforts of the Coatesville community.

Historical Buildings

Brandywine Mansion (circa 1739)

Brandywine Mansion dates to the mid-1700s. In 1788, Moses Coates added the larger west section. Rebecca Lukens lived in the house until her death in 1854. Much later, Brandywine Mansion became part of Lukens' Company Store. Currently the building is being interpreted to make the renovations as authentic as possible.

Phase I renovations to the building began in 2015 with repairs to chimneys, repairs to the roof framing, repairs to the rood cornice and the installation of a new wood shingle roof.

Tenant House (circa 1880)

Located between Terracina and the 120" Mill, the building is typical of housing built for steel workers. This house was erected in 1880 next to a barn. It was later occupied by the chauffeur/butler of Stewart and Harriet Huston. The interior of the Tenant House has been completely restored.

An exterior painting project of this property was completed in 2015.

Terracina (1849)

Built in the Country Gothic style, the exterior displays Gothic Revival features, including latticed piazzas, peaked wall dormers and diamond-paned lancet windows. A two-story, Renaissance Revival bay was added to the south side of the house in 1875.

Front porch restoration project begins in 2015.

Open to the public as a circa 1880 house museum.

Graystone Mansion (circa 1889)

A.F. Huston built Graystone in 1889 and lived there until his death in 1930. Sold to the City of Coatesville in 1938, Graystone served as City Hall until 1992. Philadelphia architects Cope & Stewardson designed Graystone employing Collegiate Gothic styling, which the firm initiated and used on several college campuses.

Sanding and refinishing of the floors on the main floor and main staircase was completed in 2015.

Open to the public for special events and exhibits.

Carriage House (circa 1889)

The Carriage House is located behind Graystone Mansion, and was built to house the horses and carriages of the family. When the Graystone Mansion was sold to the City of Coatesville, the Carriage House became the city jail and police headquarters.

No substantial work was undertaken in 2015

Not open to the public.

Lukens Executive Office Building (1902-1903)

The directors of Lukens Iron & Steel Company voted in 1900 to construct a new office building. Cope & Stewardson, again were retained, in this case using the Georgian Revival style. The building is owned by the Stewart Huston Charitable Trust and houses the administrative offices of the Graystone Society.

Museum displays were consolidated into a central exhibit room.

Open for tours of the building and exhibits.

Steelworkers' Memorial

ArcelorMittal installed the Steelworkers' Memorial in the summer of 2013. The memorial commemorates those who have perished in the steel mill as well as those who gave their lives in the line of duty on September 11, 2001. The memorial includes one of the "tridents" that was shaped by Lukens Steel before they were constructed as the base of the World Trade Center in New York City. The Museum arranged the return of ten of the original steel tridents home to Coatesville, in April 2010. This year, the Museum was honored to hold its Coatesville Remembers: Anniversary of the World Trade Center Commemoration ceremony at the new memorial.

Acquisitions & Collections

19th Century Letters Discovered in Brandywine Mansion

Unlucky for some, but very lucky for us, it is the day many people dread. However Friday, March 13th, was one of those days that preservationists and historians dream about. Wesley Sessa, working as part of his 18th Century Restoration, Inc. crew, on NISHM's Brandywine Mansion, opened a wall on the building's second floor. He discovered a treasure trove of letters along with others items and oddities such as a calipers, a bullet mold, and what looks like part of a carriage whip.

The letters were addressed to Rebecca Lukens and her brother-in-law, Solomon Lukens. Most of the letters are about business matters and the earliest correspondence dates to 1821. Fifteen of the others were written in the summer months of 1834. They all add to the fascinating portrait of early Lukens Steel history, dating back almost 200 years.

Below: The letters and artifacts inside the wall where they were found.

Charles "Skip" Huston Donates Model Train Collection

The NISHM recently received a handsome and important gift of a collection of Pennsylvania Railroad steam locomotive models. They were donated by Mr. Charles Lukens Huston, III, "Skip", a member of the Graystone Board of Directors, an avid collector of train models, and a serious and knowledgeable student of railroad history and technology.

The collection encompasses locomotive models from various periods and types, from small switchers to heavy duty freights and passenger engines, providing an overview of the steady growth and development of motive power technology by the Pennsylvania Railroad, America's leading transportation system and a powerful corporate entity.

The models, carefully preserved by Mr. Huston, are all "O" gauge, in fine condition, and mostly operable. This collection fits quite well into the Society's museum interests, focused as it is on steel, and its many uses and applications.

Lukens, having gained historic recognition as the first to roll boiler plate in America, continued its production capacities in the expansive "Age of Steam", providing steel for steam boilers to manufacturers of locomotives, such as Baldwin and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The museum welcomes this valued collection as a special feature for its exhibits and is grateful to Mr. Huston for his generous donation.

The PRR's Q2 class were the only locomotives to use a 4-4-6-4 wheel arrangement.

Top: PRR's locomotive #6110 was put into service in 1942.

Bottom: PRR's locomotive #6200, the first coal burning locomotive without cylinders, was put into service in 1944.

The PRR's class Q1 comprised a single experimental steam locomotive for freight service, #6130, built in March 1942. A duplex locomotive, it had a wheel arrangement of 4-6-4-4, comprising a four-wheel leading truck, two sets of driving wheels (six followed by four) in a rigid locomotive frame, and a four-wheel trailing truck.

Properties Available to Rent for Special Events

Three distinctly different properties within the Lukens Historic District are available for rental. Each offers the convenience of complimentary on-site parking, handicap access and nearby major thoroughfares. Patrons have flexibility with the option to choose their own caterer, hire their own event planner, or do it all themselves — we provide the canvas and they create an event to remember.
